1956-57 Officers Announced By Cancer Group

Dr. J. A. Cunningham, New Head, Stresses All Victims Benefit

The Pickaway County Chapter of the American Cancer Society has announced its new officers for 1956-57.

The local branch also underlined the fact that cancer victims need not be in destitute circumstances before they are eligible for the society's aid. People can ask for such assistance, it was explained, whenever the cost of cancer treatment is beyond their normal financial reach.

Dr. J. A. Cunningham was elected to succeed the Rev. Jack Bennett as head of the district chapter. Other new officers are: Mrs. Norman Kutler, vice-president; Miss Alice Minor, secretary, and Mrs. Richard Penn, treasurer.

In stressing that the chapter's financial help is available to any cancer patient in Pickaway County, Dr. Cunningham explained that the purpose of the aid policy is to "prevent extreme hardship and disruption of the lives of the immediate family", regardless of the person's economic status.

ALL services of the society are free and without obligation.

Funds raised by the society across the nation are a leading force behind the never-ending research to solve the mysteries of the disease. All local work in behalf of the chapter is handled by volunteers.

Hall Says HST Lacks Proof On 'Traitor'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican National Chairman Leonard Hall said today former President Truman cannot prove that Vice President Nixon ever called Truman a "traitor."

Truman, in a letter to Hall made public Saturday, said "it has been proved rather conclusively" that Nixon made the accusation Oct. 27, 1952, in Texarkana.

Replying today, Hall told Truman his letter "like so many of your speeches, is without foundation." Hall didn't say so, but it seemed apparent he did not intend to pay a $1,000 charity contribution he has offered for proof of such a statement by Nixon.

The "traitor" dispute stems from the 1952 campaign.

Associated Press stories on Oct. 27, 1952, quoted Nixon as saying in a speech at Texarkana that Truman, Dean Acheson and Adlai Stevenson "are traitors to the high principles in which many of the nation's Democrats believe." They went on to quote Nixon: "Real Democrats are outraged by the Truman - Acheson - Stevenson gang's toleration and defense of Communism in high places."

Acheson was secretary of State under Truman.

Ex-Con Confesses Fatal Beating

NEWARK (AP) — A parolee from San Quentin Prison today signed a statement admitting the fatal beating of a Newark spinster Sunday morning while she was on her way to mass.

Police said the statement was signed by Harold Shackleford, 32, of Newark in the presence of Prosecutor Forrest Ashcraft.

Shackleford had served five years and nine months of charges of kidnaping, criminal assault and robbery at San Quentin. He was arrested at his home here.

The victim was Miss Mary T. Dunn, 51. Her body was found in an alley near her home. Police reported she had been robbed.

Weekend Mishaps Kill 17 In Ohio

COLUMBUS (AP)—Seventeen persons met accidental death in Ohio this weekend. About half the deaths came on the highways.

The opening of the state's squirrel hunting season was also blamed for three deaths.

Among other deaths from miscellaneous causes, a man drowned when he fell into a barrel partly filled with water in his home and an infant died after drinking some lighter fluid.

Hefty Cop Outruns Small-Size Prowler

DAYTON (AP)—Who says cops get soft when they are assigned to a desk job.

One man who won't buy that story is 28-year-old John Richards of Dayton.

Richards is in police custody because he couldn't outrun 240-pound Sgt. L. E. Simonton who recently came off desk work to cruiser duty.

Simonton was called to a Dayton church this morning, where a prowler had been reported.

The officer surprised Richards in the church office and when Richards went out a window, crossed a roof top, dropped to the alley below and started to run, Simonton was just a few steps behind.

It was a short chase.

Police said Richards weighed about 130 pounds.

Hawkes Given Sergeant Rank; Officers Added

As the result of a city Civil service examination held Sept. 10, the Circleville Police Force now has a new sergeant plus two additional patrolmen. The promotion and two new men bring the department up to full strength.

Sgt. Leroy Hawkes, who received his stripes today, lives on 1025 Sunshine St. He has been on the force for approximately five years.

The two patrolmen are Richard Anderson who lives at 111½ E. Water St. and Fred Vogt, 25, who lives on W. Mill St.

Anderson has been on the police force previously. He resumes his duties after an absence of several months. He had resigned his post last May.

PATROLMAN Vogt is married to the former Miss Marjorie Allen. He is a veteran of the U. S. Air Force, having been stationed at Lockbourne prior to his discharge.

According to Chief Elmer Merriman, all three men will serve a 90-day probationary period to determine if they are qualified for their new duties.

Grain Taxation Cases Booked For Sept. 26

COLUMBUS (AP) Three cases protesting personal property tax assessments on grain stored under agreements with the Commodity Credit Corporation will be heard at 10 a. m. Wednesday, Sept. 26, by the State Board of Tax Appeals.

One case was filed by Ray R. and Ruth D. Maddox who did not pay taxes for the 1953-55 years on grain stored in Washington C. H. They claimed storage agreements with the commodity credit corporation relieved them of ownership of the grain.

That case originally had been set for hearing today but the hearing date was changed by the tax board because it interfered with other cases.

Similar cases were filed by Flora A. Goodrich of near New Albany, and Kermit Grener of Hilliards, and they will be heard Sept. 26 also.

The State Tax Commissioner, Stanley J. Bowers, has ruled that personal property tax assessments were made legally. The Fayette County Farm Bureau which opposes the assessments has said it will carry the fight against them to the Ohio Supreme Court if necessary.

$250,000 Worth Of Gowns Missing

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Nearly all the chic dresses designed by Pauline Trigere for her exclusive New York clientele have disappeared from a cargo dock at Kansas City airport.

Miss Trigere estimated her loss at $250,000.

The 92 dresses, packed in five cartons weighing 253 pounds, were delivered to the airport after a style show here Saturday.

The deliveryman told investigators he loaded the cartons on a cart at the dock and got a receipt for them. A freight clerk at the terminal said they were not on the cart when he went for them 20 minutes later.

Community Fund Opens Drive For $28,405

Annual Campaign's Leaders Emphasize Sticker Importance

The 1956 Pickaway County Community Fund opened today, aimed at a goal of $28,405—$3,405 above last year's target.

Solicitations are now under way in groups covering: industries, business houses, school employes, banks, civic bodies, public employes and professional workers. Forty-one civic organizations and similar community bodies have been contacted.

In launching its drive among the "sources of income" groups, leaders of the Community Fund emphasized how important it is to have the individual contributor take home and display the Fund's "Red Feather" sticker. These should be displayed after contributions are made, they explained, to avoid duplication when residential solictations begin October 1.

The Fund's operating costs last year, the first time such a campaign has been conducted in Pickaway County, amounted to three percent of the total Fund budget.

Agencies that share in money raised by the Fund are: Pickaway County Chapter of the American Red Cross, Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and the Pickaway County Youth Canteen.

Prejudices In South Seen As 'Tragedy'

CLEVELAND (AP)—Recent rioting in parts of the South shows the U. S. Supreme Court decision to end segregation in public schools is needed "to help with the emancipation of the minds of white children," the executive secretary of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People said here Sunday.

Roy Wilkins said the court decision was meant by the judges for "emancipation of Negro kids," but in uncovering white children's prejudices has revealed "one of the real tragedies of the segregation fight."

He gave a membership drive rally of the Cleveland NAACP an example of his point by quoting a 13-year-old white girl in Clay, Ky. as saying she "would rather grow up to be an idiot than go to school with niggers."

Wilkins, a former Kansas City newspaperman, said he was pleasantly "surprised" that Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee and Gov. A. B. Chandler of Kentucky had called out state troops to protect Negro children entering white schools for the first time.

He was sharply critical of another southern governor, Allan Shivers of Texas, for using state troopers in what he described as an attempt to keep Negro children out of Mansfield, Tex., schools.

'Mrs. U.S. Navy' Slated For Tour

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—"Mrs. U. S. Navy" is Mrs. Beverly Thornburg Ellis, 24, blonde wife of a petty officer second class stationed at Norfolk, Va.

She was selected Saturday night from among 31 finalists from stations throughout the world. The contestants were picked on the basis of their contribution to their husbands' naval careers.

Mrs. Ellis comes from Wheeling, W. Va. Her husband Alfred, 28, hails from Nutley, N. J. They have been married seven years and have two children.

The new Mrs. U. S. Navy begins a tour Sept. 24 of naval bases in this country and Hawaii.

Politicians Set To Woo Farmer

Ike And Adlai Both Scheduling Major Talks On U.S. Ag Problem

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The welfare of the U. S. farmer and how he votes in November appeared to hold the attention of both presidential candidates and their parties today.

President Eisenhower arranged an early appointment for Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), obviously a preliminary to the President's scheduled appearance Friday at the National Field Days and Plowing Contest at Newton, Iowa.

His Democratic opponent Adlai Stevenson scheduled an afternoon news conference in Washington, with farm topics likely to arise. Stevenson is booked to speak at the Iowa celebration the day after Eisenhower's appearance.

Stevenson accused Eisenhower Saturday of "borrowing" the Democrats' farm program in the 1952 presidential campaign, and of returning it unused immediately after the election.

Stevenson will take off next Saturday on a 7,000-mile airplane tour of 11 states, with heavy emphasis on farm areas.

* * *

EISENHOWER arranged to address a sendoff breakfast Tuesday for Vice President Nixon, who is departing on a 15,000-mile jaunt GOP campaign speakers leaving that day on campaign tours.

Stevenson's running mate Sen. Estes Kefauver headed today for dairy-conscious Wisconsin after a Cleveland appearance in which he accused the Eisenhower administration of working against "the little people" of the nation.

Kefauver bid for Midwest farm votes with a pledge that he and Stevenson would work to give farmers "a full and fair share of the national income."

He said that "the Republicans have betrayed the farmers' faith and the farmers' loyalty" and that the only way out for the farmers was to return the Democrats to power in the election.

He said that "you don't have to take our farm plank with a grain of salt as you did the Republican plank in 1952."

In Washington, the Agriculture Department said today that net farm income, one of the hottest election year topics, appears likely to be around 9 per cent higher than last year for the July-September quarter.

Stevenson raised the farm issue in a wide-ranging assault on the administration at a rally at Fairfax, Va., just across the Potomac river from Washington, D. C.

* * *

HE ALSO SAID "shameless political trickery" has been used against government workers in the loyalty security program.

The administration has, Stevenson said, 'pilloried innocent men and women under the pretense of conducting loyalty and security investigations." He said Democrats would "devise a program which will safeguard the state without degrading those who serve it."

Eisenhower also plans a televised campaign speech Wednesday night, the first of a half dozen nationwide TV and radio appearances he will make during the campaign. Wednesday's speech will emphasize world peace.

The Republican National Committee said Eisenhower also has written a letter urging election of a Republican Congress, which will be mailed to millions of voters before election day.

Other spokesmen for both sides hurled charge and countercharge over the weekend. Some samples:

Chester Bowles, Stevenson's foreign affairs consultant, said there has been a "very dangerous" collapse of bipartisanship in this field.

Harold Stassen, Eisenhower's disarmament aide, replied in a face-to-face TV appearance that bipartisanship "hasn't collapsed; it is working better than ever."

Another Democratic spokesman, Sen. Gore of Tennessee, launched a general attack.

Gore said the United States is falling behind in world prestige, airpower, atomic power, intercontinental ballistics missiles and in the development of natural resources and social progress, all, he said, "for lack of virile and aggressive leadership."

Draft Hinted To Build Up U.S. Reserves

WASHINGTON (AP)—A sharp lag in voluntary enlistments may make it necessary to draft men for military reserve duty.

Congress once rejected the draft idea, but the National Security Training Commission said voluntary enlistments during the first year have provided only 40,000 of the 100,000 men sought.

Under it, youths below the 18½-year draft age limit are encouraged to volunteer for six months of active duty training, to be followed by 7½ years in the active reserve. The volunteers become exempt from the 24-month service requirement of regular draftees, who also must continue service in the reserves.

But the commission said that despite "the greatest effort of its type ever put forward in peacetime on behalf of any armed forces program," results of the drive for volunteers fell far short of expectations.

Unless the rate of volunteering can be doubled or tripled soon, the coomission said in a report to Congress, "we should fundamentally revise the program and take steps to provide the necessary manpower."

Hearing Deferred Against Farmer

TOLEDO (AP)—U.S. District Court today deferred a hearing on charges that a Williams County farmer violated the Wheat and Marketing Act by refusing to report his wheat acreage.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Clarence M. Condon said the farmer, Harvey D. Carlin of Bryan, owns 14 farms totaling more than 1,200 acres.

David Fike of Chicago, special agent for the Department of Agriculture's Compliance and Investigation Division, said Carlin refused to comply with the law the last three years, protesting that the satue was unfair.

A BRITISH PARATROOPER, on sentry duty at the dock gates in Cyprus harbor, offers one French soldier a cigarette, while the other one eats grapes. The Frenchmen are members of a small advance party of troops that will be stationed at Fumagusta, Cyprus, by agreement with the British. States Rights Group Set To Deadlock U.S. Election

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The national States Rights conference has launched "a national conservative movement" to try to elect a President by deadlocking the Electoral College.

The 317 delegates from a dozen splinter parties in 25 states approved a platform and "endorsed" candidates in the climax of a three-day meeting Saturday.

A move to set up a third national party was beaten down after a brief but uproarious floor fight in which police were called to "insure order."

The 15 - point "declaration of principles" that serves as a campaign platform called for repeal of federal income taxes and condemned "federal invasion of states rights."

T. Coleman Andrews of Richmond, Va., a Democrat and former commissioner of internal revenue, is the States Rights candidate for president.

* * *

ENDORSED as Andrews' running mate was Thomas H. Verdel of Bakersfield, Calif., a former Republican representative. Neither candidate was present at the conference.

John U. Barr of New Orleans, a power in the States Rights movement and prime organizer of the conference, led the fight against formally declaring the movement a third party.

"If we form a third party the Republicans and Democrats will kill us," he argued in behind the scenes conferences with ambitious delegates. "We couldn't win. This is a federation of independent state parties."

The long-shot strategy of the movement is to win enough presidential electors to keep either major party from getting the necessary 266 votes—one more than half.

The election would then be thrown into the House of Representatives, where each state would have one vote, regardless of population. States Rights leaders predict they then could win a "compromise" fight.

States listed by conference officials as having, or are certain to have, independent electors on the November ballot were:

Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Jersey, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, New Mexico and Wyoming.

All parties represented at the conference, despite varying titles, are committed to the doctrine of powerful individual states and a weak federal government.

All of them are also strongly pro-segregation.

87 Calves Loose As Truck Upsets

MIDDLEPORT (AP)—This Meigs County town was the scene of a free-for-all rodeo during the wee hours today when a truck and trailer upset scattering 87 calves.

The State Highway Patrol said a truck and trailer driven by James S. Bogie, 22, of Mount Sterling, Ky., overturned on the New York Central tracks crossing Ohio 7 just south of here when Bogie tried to avoid a train.

The train sliced a hole in the roof of the truck.

Ten calves were killed and 87 others rushed out of the hole, racing through the sleeping town.

A roundup was launched by the patrol, sheriff's deputies and volunteers.

Bogie was not injured.

Future Steel Strike Seen As Unneeded

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The United Steelworkers of America, beginning their five-day biennial convention today, will hear an executive report that nationwide strikes on the basic steel industry may no longer be necessary.

Last July's steel strike may prove to be the final major labor disturbance in the industry, said the report prepared by President David J. McDonald.

This is based, the report said, on the conviction "that the future of union - management relations lies along the path of widening areas of understanding and a growing sense of the common interests and mutual responsibilities of both labor and management."

Beacon Darkened To Save Birds

NEW YORK (AP)—A bright beacon atop the Empire State Building has been blacked out to prevent fatal crackups by birds.

Bird lovers feared the dazzling light would charm thousands of night-flying birds off course and send them crashing into the skyscraper or each other.

The building management announced Sunday that the powerful stationary beam will stay dark until Nov. 1 and the end of the migrating season. Revolving beacons on the building will continue to sweep the sky because moving lights are not considered a hazard to birds.

Scientists Say Projectile May Not Come Back

High-Flying Gadget Seen Becoming Orbital In November Launching

ROME, Italy (AP) — The worlds first earth satellite carrier rocket will be fired 300 miles into space from Cocoa Beach, Fla., this fall and may well turn into an orbital satellite itself, American scientists reported today.

The scientists, assembling here for the seventh international Astronautical Congress which opens Tuesday, spoke of the American plan in informal discussions.

Conference sources said first trials of the rocket will be made "some time in the late fall, probably November."

The complete rocket, which will be used to launch an earth satellite during the International Geophysical year 1957-58, will be a three-stage device. The stage one rocket, known as a Viking, has already been tested up to heights of over 150 miles.

The American tests this fall will more than double that height by the addition of the third stage rocket, basically the same as the first, will not be tested until next spring, informants said.

* * *

DURING THE tests this fall, three rockets will be fired off into space. Two will be improved first stage rockets only. In the third test, the third-stage satellite carrier will be attached.

The completed satellite carrier will be 72 feet long and 45 inches in diameter, reaching a maximum speed of nearly five miles a second.

The total weight of the three-stage rocket will be 22,600 pounds. That of the satellite itself, complete with full scientific equipment for radioing back to earth the secrets of outer space, will be in the region of 21 pounds.

Toledo Seeks New City Manager

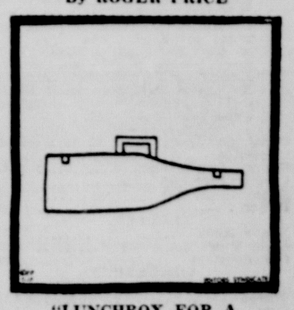
TOLEDO (AP)—City Manager John M. McCarthy submitted his resignation today and local Democratic leaders got busy on the job of picking a successor for the $17,920-a-year post.

McCarthy, 47, plans to return to private law practice, probably with a local firm. He joined the City Law Department in 1942 and became city manager in 1954.

Among men mentioned as possible replacements were Frazier Reams, former congressman from Lucas County; Vice Mayor Ned Skeldon, B. R. MacRitchie, former city service director; and County Engineer Guy E. Neeper.

DROODLES

By ROGER PRICE



"LUNCHBOX FOR A PLAYBOY"

This Droodle was suggested by Hugh Hefner, who's the editor of the magazine called "Playboy." This means he's responsible for hiring writers, selecting photographers to take girley pictures and paying for lunch. I offered to take a job (cheap) as assistant editor in charge of selecting Models but Hugh says I deserve something more important and he's going to give me an assignment to do research and write a couple of articles he's had in mind for some time. They'll be called "I Spent Four Days Inside a Volcano Crater" and "How To Play Russian Roulette." Just goes to show that you have to have personal contacts to get the good jobs in the magazine business.

Dulles Denies U. S. Plans To Finance West Nation Boycott Of Suez Canal

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said after a conference with President Eisenhower today that there is no American plan to finance the "detouring of the Suez Canal."

Dulles told reporters at the White House the United States is prepared to help finance, through the Export-Import Bank, increased exports of American oil to Western nations if transit through the canal is "impractical or greatly diminished."

Asked whether he was barring financial aid to other nations to help them transport oil around Africa and thus detour the canal, Dulles said he and Eisenhower have planned only as a contingency the financing of American oil exports.

"We have not gone beyond that in our planning and we do not believe we will have to," Dulles said.

Dulles reiterated in a formal statement that the United States "is dedicated to seeking by peaceful means assurance that the Suez Canal will carry out the international purpose to which it is dedicated by the Convention of 1888.

* * *

"WE ARE NOT trying to organize any boycott of the canal but we cannot be blind to the fact that conditions might become such that transit through the canal is impractical or greatly diminished."

Dulles' statements today were contrary to reports in London. There, the Associated Press reported that a boycott of the Suez would be financed by America.

The report came as diplomats of major nations gathered for another conference on the Suez dispute.

Most of the diplomats were in agreement that Egypt would reject the Western Big Three's proposal to operate the canal under a users' setup.

The London report stated flatly that the U. S., Britain and France were prepared for a long economic squeeze to bring Egyptian President Nasser to terms.

Nasser already has labeled the users' plan as a "declaration of war."

The U. S. was reported ready to grant half a billion dollars in loans to Western European countries to help them pay the extra cost of detouring their ships around the tip of South Africa if Egypt formally turns down the users' plan.

Secretary of State Dulles will make known the American aid offer when he attends the users' conference opening here Wednesday.

Local Legion Drum-Bugle Unit Disbanded

Due to a lack of musicians, Circleville American Legion's fast-stepping Drum and Bugle Corp, "The Gladiators", has been temporarily disbanded.

The local Hall Adkins Post 134, however, is now in the process of formulating plans for reorganizing the musical unit in January, 1957.

According to Legion officials here, the Shawnee VFW Corp of New Lexington will consolidate with the local group of musicians. One or two other out-of-town units may also join the Circleville unit, spokesman added.

With the outside musicians coming here, the popular group will probably re-enter American Legion drum and bugle competition. The musicians will also march in parades. The corps will still be called the "Gladiators".

The corp was organized here in August, 1949. The unit entered competition all over the state, winning many honors for their outstanding performances.

Motorcycling Man And Son Collide

CARLISLE, Pa. (AP)—A motorcyclist looking for his father also on a motorcycle, met him near here Saturday—head on.

The father, Roger Marhley, 39, and his son, William, 20, were out for a ride on a rural road near here. Roger dropped behind. William swung around to look for him and they crashed head-on in the middle of a small bridge. Both suffered broken left legs.

38,000 Turn Out To Hear Evaneglist

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The Akron Rubber Bowl was filled with 38,000 persons Sunday for Dr. Billy Graham's first outdoor revival meeting in Ohio.

"You have not come to hear a preacher, you have come to hear a message from God," the evenegelist told the crowd.

He said the biggest threat to his ministry is that some persons might answer his appeal because of "me or an organization instead of their faith in God."

30 Feared Lost As U.S. Ship Goes Down

5 Men In Boat Saved Off Norway; 2 Bodies Found By Searchers

BODOE, Norway (AP)—The body of a second man killed in the sinking of the American freighter Pelagia was pulled today from the icy sea off Norway. All the ship's 37 crewmen, except five men plucked Sunday from a bobbing lifeboat, are feared dead.

The lifeboat also contained the body of a steward who died of exposure. An air-sea search for survivors went on despite vanishing hopes.

A low-flying search plane sighted the second body drifting among the debris and oil slick where the Pelagia sank in a raging storm Saturday night.

The Norwegian destroyer Trondheim sped to the scene and retrieved the body. It was not identified immediately.

Three planes and a score of ships and fishing boats crisscrossed the area of the shipwreck, off Norway's northwest coast. There was a slight chance that survivors could have been washed ashore on one of the hundreds of rock islands nearby.

* * *

CLOSE SCRUTINY of the islands was made hazardous by a wavering breeze and huge, oily ocean swells. A leaden sky and frequent rain squalls lowered visibility. The air temperature in the search area hovered around 45 degrees.

Rescue officials privately expressed their doubt of finding any of the 30 men still missing alive.

The American Embassy at Oslo ordered Vice Consul Michael Newling to fly to Harstad, where the five survivors were brought, to provide for medical aid, clothing and other necessities.

The survivors said they last saw their shipmates on the deck of the sinking freighter. They said the gale smashed the ship's three other lifeboats and that they were afraid the others were unable to get away.

The British trawler Northern Duke found the lifeboat drifting between Myken and Traena islands, just south of the Arctic Circle. In the space of a night and a morning it had been driven 60 miles by wind and current from where the Pelagia sank.

Dead was Jean Lopez of Santiago, Puerto Rico, a steward. The others in the boat said they tried desperately to keep Lopez awake as the Arctic cold numbed him, but he fell asleep and died.

The survivors were steward Demetrius M. Hadjicostas of Syros, Greece; fireman Pedro Pileta Rodriguez of Baltimore; seamen Lawrence Redigs of Central City, Colo., and James Arnold of Baltimore; and Andreas Alexandro Rou Orphanos of Piraeus, Greece, an engineroom man.

The Pelagia, a World War II Liberty ship loaded with 10,000 tons of iron ore, was bound from Narvik for Baltimore.

Tremendous seas rolled over the ship and smashed the No. 1 hold. It rapidly filled with water. As the water rose, the bow sank until the propellers broke clear.

The seas shattered part of the bridge and damaged the deck.

Chamber And DAR Urge Flags For Constitution Week

Circleville's Chamber of Commerce joined the Daughters of the American Revolution today in urging local residents to display the American flag in observance of the current "Constitution Week".

Mayor Bob Hedges has proclaimed the observance locally, describing the U. S. Constitution as "the most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man." Pickaway Plains Chapter of the DAR pointed out that the observance commemorates the 169th anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution.

A spokesman for the Chamber urged that all business houses, as well as local homes, display the flag this week. He cited the impressive display seen in Lancaster to mark the observance.

Dime Store Toy Assists Burglar

DALLAS (AP)—A burglar at a Ben Franklin five and dime store found that the store's merchandise works right well for burglaries.

As officers reconstructed the crime today, they said it appeared the burglar set off a tear gas bomb at the safe.

From a counter he found a pair of underwater goggles. With the goggles protecting his eyes, the burglar then looted the safe of more than $300.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The outdoor political rally with barbecue where voters turn out to gaze on the candidates is still very much a part of the American scene.

Pasture politics still is about as good a way as any for a politician to get down to the grass roots.

Sometimes, though, the folk who make up the grass roots can be a bit confusing, as the Democrats' presidential nominee, Adlai Stevenson, found out Saturday night.

When he came to Washington to set up campaign headquarters, Stevenson agreed to cross the Potomac and assist local Democrats in their efforts to recapture Virginia's 10th District House seat from the Republicans—and thus was born the idea for a big barbecue.

While the 10th Virginia District has its particular peculiarities, it still is a product of the trend in this country toward suburbia.

It is filled with white collar workers, many of whom belong to the new station wagon set. These people differ from their counterparts elsewhere only in that a large percentage of them work for the government.

Mixed in with the suburbanites are old line families, who continue to farm their lands.

In this suburb, as in the suburbs elsewhere, there is little real poverty and little great wealth. The educational level is considered high.

About 5,000 of these people people turned out for the rally. As a rally with "gala entertainment, music and good food," the affair was a bust. It rained. One of the two speaker systems failed. There was a shortage of barbecue.

In 1952 Stevenson lost Virginia to the Republicans. In that campaign the state's major political figure, Democratic Sen. Harry Flood Byrd, sat on the sidelines. This year, Byrd thus far has been silent, although he criticized the Republicans' civil rights platform plank at unsatisfactory.

If Byrd came out for Stevenson, Virginia most likely would be in the bag for the Democrats. There is scant doubt that if Byrd remains quiet Stevenson will be hurt. How badly is anybody's guess.

At the rally Stevenson was giving his speech a last-minute polish, when the name of Byrd was mentioned. There were loud and widespread boos and hisses. Stevenson looked up from his text, obviously surprised.

This was a partisan Democratic crowd expressing disapproval of a state leader in the presence of their national leader. Here was a clear case of the grass roots expressing an opinion. In his speech Stevenson made no mention of Byrd, for whom there was applause when it turned out that he was sending his "best wishes" to the rally. Byrd said the illness of his wife kept him from attending.

It probably would be a reasonably safe guess that the initial boos were attributable in this particular suburbia to some unrest over domination by downstate rural politicians.

The rapid growth of urban areas with their vote concentrations and new, changing values may well be something for politicians to ponder. The grass roots of tomorrow may be on a bus line and, as Stevenson found out, they can be heard.

Meanwhile, pasture politics will pick around a little longer—and it still has television beat all hollow.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: When my son came into the world, my wife was taken. Not long afterward the boy died of polio. All this happened a few years back, and I have since overcome remorse. Now, at 40, I am energetic, ambitious, personable, articulate, literate and lonesome.

Loneliness is pain; it isn't good to suffer long periods of loneliness. At 5 or 6 p. m. it starts, when everyone is hustling home to family life. At this hour I am purposeless, alone, heading for some cocktail bar to kill time over a drink and relax until dinner and another night.

At the "right" cocktail lounges there are always a dozen or more persons, you know the kind: well dressed, alert, sophisticated, "successful." There will be a few couples, laughing and murmuring together, but mostly singles: men and women alone with a drink and a cigarette, avoiding each others' eyes, yet with a peculiar feeling of kinship as they sit there, wary of the sort of pick-ups that happen so often in a big city.

I've wondered about it a lot—wondered what is to be gained by a dictate of society that prevents lonely persons from speaking to each other in such circumstances. There they sit—in New York or Boston or Chicago or Miami or wherever—feeling that it would be pleasant to become acquainted, to have a human contact, but barred by a silly code foisted upon them by generations long dead.

Is there a reasonable solution for us, without resorting to marriage brokers, or to phony "get-acquainted" clubs; or to "why not call up" this-or-that relative or fellow worker?

P. B.

DEAR P. B: You have a problem of emotional isolation, so let's not beat about the bush, talking in terms of masses of people.

In your long letter, here condensed, you disclose (inadvertently) a kind of cult-worship of brisk "ambition" and big "success," as if these were insignia of society's anointed, so to speak.

Evidently you have a religious sort of respect for acquisitive drive and worldly "recognition," as aspects of human enterprise that (supposedly) lead into, and are part of, the "good life." And probably this outlook on the human struggle is just about the sum total of your conscious philosophy of existence. For the rest, you don't know how to begin to live as a psychologically maturing individual, in a "great wide wonderful beautiful world" (to borrow a poet's phrase).

Seen in perspective, from the vantage point of a good deal of living, the big city cocktail lounges are like sideshows in a circus atmosphere. They are corridors of unreality.

It isn't a "silly code" that keeps strangers from saluting one another as prospective friends in cocktail lounges, bars, theaters and other such public places. Rather, it is seasoned savvy in the asphalt jungle, to keep your guard up amongst persons whose history, intentions and-or character you don't know.

The reasonable solution of your headache is to stay in the real world, instead of heading for a dream world, after office hours. Go home to the sticks (or establish a home on the outskirts) and put down roots there—becoming involved in neighborliness and community activity. There you will more readily find plain garden variety womankind—the sort of woman who might value you as the answer to prayer.

Expanded Ohio Ag Laboratory Urged

DEFIANCE (AP)—Creation of an Ohio Department of Agriculture center by expanding the department's laboratory at Reynoldsburg has been advocated by Michael V. DiSalle, Democratic candidate for governor.

"My visits throughout the entire state during the year have shown increasing interest in agricultural services and techniques," DiSalle said. "The study and eradication of brucellosis and other diseases should be continued and expanded. There is need for an animal isolation building at Reynoldsburg laboratory for diagnostic tests."

Bakers In France Pleading For Tips

PARIS (AP)—In France the regular price is 45 francs (about 11 cents) for a loaf of bread weighing a little over a pound. It's against the law to charge more.

But today posters going up in bakeries all over the country asked customers to "please be kind enough" to pay an additional franc.

This novel bakers' scheme for raising receipts is designed to finance a 15 percent wage increase for bakers.

New Ballpoint Pens Popular

JOHNSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — There were complaints aplenty about the old-fashioned nib pens in post offices but, says Johnstown Postmaster George McMillan: "No one every stole them." He chained 10 new ballpoint pens to writing desks Monday. Every one of them had been stolen by Saturday.

Fried Chicken Loses Fine Taste

PITTSBURGH (AP)—That chicken John Giancola fried as a present to his mother on her 89th birthday tasted pretty good to them . . . until Giancola's wife came home from work. She discovered Giancola had fried the chicken in grease into which she had mixed mouse poison. Giancola, 54, and his mother were rushed to hospitals and given antidotes. Both responded quickly and were discharged.

KANSAS CITY'S 'SLEEPER'

KANSAS CITIANS do not need to be told about the complexities of the federal government. They have just been given embarrassing proof. Kansas City, Kans., has learned that the recent session of Congress transferred title to a valuable piece of downtown real estate to the Wyandotte Indian tribe of Oklahoma. And the President has already signed the measure into law.

Nobody in Kansas knew about it, apparently. The Kansas City Chamber of Commerce was as surprised as anyone.

Rep. Scrivner, whose Second Congressional District includes Kansas City, says he knew nothing about it. Sen. Frank Carlson also professes a lack of knowledge about such a bill.

But there it is — printed in black and white, duly passed and signed.

The ground in question is the historic Huron Indian cemetery in the heart of downtown Kansas City. The Wyandotte Historical Society is already leading a battle to keep the site intact.

But the Wyandotte Indians apparently want to sell the site for the $1.5 million it can bring. They apparently were able to slip the bill through Congress without anyone in Kansas City being the wiser.

There's such an immense load of business for Congress and the federal government these days that among the thousands of "non-controversial" bills it is possible occasionally to sneak a "sleeper" past the most gimlet-eyed watchers. Many of these pass each session of Congress, with only a few coming to public attention later.

MILE-HIGH SKYSCRAPER

ONLY THE unpredictable Frank Lloyd Wright could come up with a scheme to build a mile-high skyscraper in Chicago and make folk agree that the project makes sense. Anyone else, they would call the "man in the white coat."

Americans have learned to accept the genius of Wright as something original despite the fact that it also is unconventional. Wright has long been a conceited, unbearable character, but he is probably the greatest living architect.

Wright's influence on building in this country is immeasurable, but it is probably greater than that of any group — certainly greater than that of any other individual.

So, when the "old man of architecture" proposes a mile-high building, the reaction of the man in the street is, "Why, that's really something."

What Wright has not answered is the basic question, "Why?" Would a mile-high structure do anything that five smaller buildings wouldn't. Isn't present thinking more in line with spreading out cities instead of stacking them up?

One is inclined to agree that Wright is having a "last fling" (he's 87) and hopes to leave behind a monument that will cause him to be remembered by millions, not just his fellow craftsmen.

Russia is conducting a campaign against profane language. The red regime might obtain results by giving the people something to swear by, not at.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The control of the United States Senate may hinge upon the results of the election in three states, Oregon, Washington and New York. The present line up in the Senate is 49 Democrats and 47 Republicans.

In Oregon and Washington the two Democrats, Wayne Morse and Warren Magnuson, are running for re-election. Should they be re-elected, it will change nothing in the Senate. In New York State, Herbert Lehman, Democrat, has retired.

The contest is between Mayor Robert Wagner, Democrat, and Jacob Javits, Republican. Should Wagner be elected, it will produce no shift in Senate ratios. Should Javits be elected, it will count one up toward a Republican majority.

The three Republicans who are running in these states, Douglas McKay in Oregon, Governor Arthur B. Langlie in Washington and Jacob Javts in New York, were particularly favored by President Eisenhower and are being supported by the Republican National Committee.

Douglas McKay was Secretary of the Interior. He has been made the scapegoat in what the Democrats call "the Eisenhower Give-Away Program," by which they mean an avoidance of excessive government ownership of land and properties interfering with private enterprise and the revenue of states from taxation. The conflict in Oregon could be over an issue, government enterprise versus state enterprise.

But into this situation has come the personality of Wayne Morse, a professorial type who had served on the National War Labor Board when Franklin D. Roosevelt was President, who came into the United States Senate as a Republican, became a turn-coat in 1952 because he disliked Eisenhower and his associates and is now a Democrat, having the full support of Senator Richard Neuberger whom Morse used to attack bitterly. It will take some doing to defeat Wayne Morse in Oregon who has organized labor and farm support.

In New York, the Democratic candidate is the Mayor of New York City, Robert F. Wagner, the son of the late Senator by the same name who authored the Wagner Act which organized labor has regarded as the charter of American labor.

Robert Wagner has made a singularly competent mayor of the very complex New York City and has gained for himself considerable national kudos. All factions of the Democratic Party favored him for Senator; he is also the candidate of the Liberal Party and will have A.F.L.-C.I.O. endorsement. He is a Roman Catholic.

His Republican opponent, Jacob Javits, has been a Member of Congress and is now Attorney General of the State. The Democrats of New York, as products of the Roosevelt Administration, are fully attuned to New Deal thinking; the Republicans are not intellectually so regimented.

There are still many conservative Republicans, followers of Robert A. Taft. In some areas, such as Queens and Syracuse, Senator Joe McCarthy continues to have an enormous following. The Republicans can be said to be split between conservatives and liberals, but they all seemed to be united before San Francisco on the program that only the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket could carry New York State.

Javits would be representative of the the liberal wing of the party and all his recent diffculties with a Senate committee arose from the fact that the conservatives did not want him but had no other practical suggestion to make except Thomas E. Dewey who refused the nomination.

At the Executive Committee meeting in Albany on September 10, where the candidate was selected to be presented as the unanimous choice to the Republican State Committee, eight out of 25 votes were anti-

SYNOPSIS

In Wild West days, Narcissa Hull traveled by stagecoach to Coyote Creek, Montana, to marry Emil Jacobsen. One passenger became obnoxious in his attentions to her—Dolf Kinney. He bragged of being the richest and most powerful man in the territory, and told her to jilt Jacobsen and marry him. Narcissa found comfort in the presence of Dr. Erd Eklund, who helped her fend off Kinney. When the stagecoach stopped at Coyote Creek, Emil was not waiting for Narcissa. The doctor offered her a ride to Emil's cabin and she gratefully accepted. They found Emil —murdered only minutes before.

Dr. Eklund thought of a haven for Narcissa—a position as housekeeper for Tom Armington and Tom's two wild young orphan daughters.

For hidden reasons, Kinney wants Eklund to replace Philpott, the surgeon at the local Army post who resigned. When Erd declined, Kinney threatened to expose him as a deserter at Chickamauga. Kinney also has an influence over Major Blake, the post commander, and Blake effected the appointment. Erd rode to Emil's cabin in search of the shell to the murder bullet. The doctor was fired upon and his horse killed. He shot the gunman—Deever, a hireling of Kinney's—and rode Deever's horse back to town.

Eklund allowed himself to be induced to carry whiskey to the Indians. The doctor found Plenty Horses dead from smallpox, and his contaminated blanket missing. Looking around for it, Erd saw the blanket being worn by Chief Man Walks Alone. The chief refused to give it up.

CHAPTER 12

DOLF KINNEY had always prided himself on being a direct man, one who did not beat about the bush. When he wanted something, he went after it, and he had given an excellent and public demonstration of that in regard to Narcissa Hull. Everybody in this whole stretch of country knew that he had proposed to her and that he had made it plain that he intended to marry her.

It was as well that everybody should know and understand. Men outnumbered women, in this land, by ten or twenty to one. Women as young, beautiful and desirable as Narcissa were rare indeed. If it weren't that he had made his announcement so publicly, thereby practically putting his own brand on her, every unattached male, and very probably some few with more or less nebulous alliances, would be beating a path to her door.

He wanted none of that, and he had acted to make certain that it did not happen. It would be a bold man indeed who would trespass where he warned away, or challenge when he wanted something. Most men knew Dolf Kinney, and the power he wielded, direct or controlled.

So he was reasonably easy in his mind, but it would do no harm to make his intentions doubly plain by calling on her today, and it would be a double pleasure to add enjoyment to business, since he had to go to the fort in any case. He swung his saddle horse in to Armington's ranch, looking about with sharp approval. He'd never molested Armington, or had any truck with him, one way or another. But he liked the way Armington was fixing this place up. He had, he reflected, particular reasons for liking it.

Looking about, he caught sight of Narcissa, off by the barn, flanked by Armington's two girls. Apparently they had been showing her the calf penned over there, and all three of them were laughing about something. The laughter broke off abruptly as he strode toward them, and they stopped uncertainly. There was more of apprehension than welcome in their eyes.

"Hello, Sweetheart," Kinney greeted. "Thought I'd stop by and see if you was ready to marry me yet."

Narcissa opened her mouth to reply, but was spared the need. Peggy and Patty had stood, close on either side of her, watching this big man as if frozen. Fear and distrust had blazed in their eyes, and it was evident that the story had reached their ears, as well as those of virtually everyone else in this section of the north country, of what had happened on the stage.

For some years now they had pretty much run wild, with few restraining influences. When they wished to yield to impulse, they generally did so, and now was no exception. Before Kinney quite knew what was happening, the two were swarming on and over him, shaking his arms, kicking at him, screaming, half-crying.

"You get away from here, you bad man, you!" Patty cried furiously. "Miss Narcissa is taking care of us, and you ain't going to take her away! I hate you!"

"Peggy! Patty!" Narcissa exclaimed, horrified, but Dolf Kinney had the situation under control. For a moment he had been too surprised to react. Then he grabbed with both big paws, clutching each girl by the arm and shoulder. Despite their frantic struggles, he lifted both of them off their feet and held them, still kicking, in front of him, well off the ground. To their surprise, he was grinning broadly.

"Well, well, what've we got here?" he demanded. "So Narcissa's takin' care of you, is she, and you like her? That makes three of us. I like her, too, and I want her to take care of me! But I like kids—'specially little girls that've got the spunk you kids have! We're goin' to get along fine."

He set them down, sobered and abashed, and fumbled, for once uncertain, in his pocket. He produced two silver dollars and tendered them.

"I wish I had some candy, but I don't," he sighed. "But there's some at the store in town. You get some."

They eyed him uneasily, surprised by this reaction. Patty half extended a tentative hand toward the shining bauble, but Peggy indignantly snatched her arm away.

"We don't want your money!" she shouted, and stuck out her tongue. "And we don't want you, any more than Narcissa does! You stay away and leave her alone!"

Turning, fearful of the catquick strength of this big man, she fled behind the nearest soddy, her sister beside her. Kinney stared after them, and his grin widened.

"Now that's the sort of kids I like," he pronounced. "Got a lot of spirit, and ain't afraid to say what they mean, same as I do! Know what they like, too, same as I do, and show mighty good judgment, likin' you, Narcissa. I sure didn't make any mistake when I decided to marry you!"

"It takes two to make an agreement!" Narcissa flashed. She was surprised by his reaction, and somewhat inclined to doubt her first judgment of him. A man who liked children must have some good in him—

But that did not in the least alter her abhorrence at the thought of such a man for a husband. If the idea had been distasteful when he had first mentioned it, so flauntingly in public, and when her thoughts had been fixed on a somewhat shadowy, not too well-remembered man on a bit of land, it had become doubly so since then. Perhaps because she could now contrast him with a man so much his opposite, a quiet medico who was neither shadowy nor hard to recall.

"That part don't worry me any," Kinney retorted. "I always get what I want, and I want you. Well, I'll be seein' you, Sweetheart."

He turned back toward his horse, swung again as an afterthought struck him, and tossed the silver dollars toward her.

"Get some candy for the kids," he said. "They'll change their minds."

He was hugely pleased with himself and life in general as he approached the post. The sentry hailed him in friendly fashion, and Kinney rode past without halting, making his way with the ease of long familiarity, going as if this post, like all the country, were his personal property.

Breast Cancer In Men

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

CANCER of the male breast, unfortunately, doesn't get much public attention. Seldom is much written about it. In fact, there undoubtedly are doctors who have never even heard of it.

While it isn't very prevalent—it accounts for less than one per cent of cancer of the breast in both sexes—cancer of the male breast is a problem.

And because it is fairly rare, it may frequently be overlooked and symptoms even ignored. I think all of you men should be acquainted with the symptoms, even though the odds are greatly against your ever becoming a victim.

Major symptoms, either alone or in combinations, can include: breast mass or swelling; a bloody or thin, watery discharge from the nipple; nipple retraction, ulceration or encrustation; axillary swelling; and either local or distant pain.

First Symptom

Generally, the first symptom is a mass in the breast and nothing more. Pain, on the other hand, usually is an insignificant initial complaint. Seldom is pain the only symptom.

The majority of victims of this disease, I believe, discover their own cancer, probably by noticing a lump or swelling upon self-examination. Relatively few cases are found during the course of a routine physical exam.

Regular Check-up

Perhaps a more thorough examination of the male breast during a regular physical check-up might be in order.

Age apparently has little to do with the development of cancer of the male breast. A check of 146 victims showed their ages extended from 24 to 85 with the average age being 52 years.

Occupation doesn't seem to be a factor, either.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

K. Y.: I took some aureomycin for pneumonia for about two weeks. I then developed diarrhea with cramps in my stomach which have persisted for the last five months.

Answer: It would seem you have developed some form of sensitivity to aureomycin. This is not too uncommon. Usually this condition will pass with time, but the giving of liver injections and vitamin B_{12} is sometimes of help.

Merit Brings Silver Dollar

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Ira I. Slomon has an odd hobby for a millionaire. He likes to give away money.

Sloman, known to his friends as "The Glue King," is a kind of poor man's Rockefeller, but likes to think of himself as "the biggest small businessman in America."

He keeps bags full of silver dollars in this country estate, his main factory and his city apartment. He likes to distribute them to others, but on his own terms.

Sometimes he slips a silver dollar into the hand of man he has talked to for five minutes. But he may know you for years and never offer you one.

"I give them to anyone who shows a sign of trueness in him," he said. "I don't think of them as money, but as symbols of good will and a wish for good luck to someone who has done or said something worthwhile."

A dapper little man of 72 with squirrel-bright eyes, this silver-dollar philanthropist likes to wear checkered caps, tattersall vests and yellow shoes. He looks like a retired vaudeville hoofer. And that's what he is.

Slomon is a graduate of the poverty - stricken Lower East Side and only had three years of schooling.

"But I always had a creative mind," he said. "I always liked to develop new things."

After a brief period as a song and dance man, he became a top ladies' hat salesman. In 1911 he turned his guest bedroom into a laboratory and developed a new kind of millinery glue. This launched him on a third career.

It's a poor glue-maker who cannot make money stick to his fingers. Slomon has had no trouble in this respect.

He now makes 80 kinds of specialized adhesives (they stick together everything from feathers to metals in three plants. Long ago he became a millionaire, and his hand-picked customers range from Lily Dache to the Pennsylvania Railroad. But for 45 years he has run his operation himself, refusing to hire even one salesman.

"I learned early in life to rely on myself," he said, "and I want to stay that way. I'd rather be a big small businessman than a small big businessman who had to depend on other people."

Slomon began collecting silver dollars back in 1933 after the nation's banks were briefly closed.

"I couldn't even draw out funds to meet my own payroll," he recalled, "and I swore then I'd never again be caught without plenty of ready cash.

"But after I piled up around 10,000 silver dollars they began to be a nuisance. They took up an awful lot of space. So I started giving them away gradually."

In the last five years Slomon, whose larger philanthropies are his own secret, has presented 3,600 silver dollars, usually keeps half a dozen handy in his pocket so he can reward any Boy Scout caught helping an old lady across the street.

Those Pesky Bums Climb Up To Top In NL, May Remain

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Just two weeks ago, the Brooklyn Dodgers appeared to be finished. They had dropped a doubleheader to the last-place New York Giants, their hitters were floundering and their pitchers were unsteady.

They were 3½ games behind the first-place Milwaukee Braves. The picture couldn't have been blacker.

That was 14 days ago, and to Manager Walt Alston it probably seems like 14 years.

Today, the Brooks are at the top of the heap in the tight National League race. They have a working margin of half-a-game over the Braves, are one game up in the vital lost column, and play most of their remaining games in Ebbets Field.

While the Braves certainly cannot be accused of wilting under pressure, there are these facts to be considered:

1. They have lost 8 of their last 13 games.

2. They are at .500 in their last 10 games.

3. In their last 13 games, their pitchers have turned in only two complete games. Bob Buhl has been knocked out four times in a row and Lew Burdette twice.

4. Normally a placid lot, the Braves have been snapping at the umpires, a sure sign of their high tension.

So it is apparent that their own failure, as much as any streak by the Dodgers, has been hurting them.

Their game with the New York Giants was postponed because of rain Sunday while Brooklyn was whipping the Cincinnati Redlegs 3-2. The defeat was a severe blow to the Redlegs. They now are three games out with only 12 to go. If the Brooks beat them tonight, they can kiss their chances goodbye.

The Braves play the Giants a twi-night double-header tonight.

The New York Yankees were frustrated Sunday in their effort to wrap up the American League pennant when they could do no better than a split with Cleveland. The Yanks won the opener 10-3 but dropped the nightcap 4-3.

Both the Indians and the Boston Red Sox, who dropped a pair to the Detroit Tigers 5-4 and 8-4, were eliminated. Only the Chicago White Sox who took two games from the Washington Senators 7-5 and 7-2, still are in the running. The next game the Yanks win or the White Sox lose will end it.

The double-header between Baltimore and Kansas City wound up in a stalemate. The Orioles won the first 3-2 and the A's the second 10-1.

In other NL games, St. Louis won the first game of a doubleheader from Pittsburgh 3-2, but the Pirates captured the second 9-3. Chicago and Philadelphia also split, the Cubs grabbing the first 7-4 and the Phillies the afterpiece 4-1.

Bachelor Hanover Eyed In Jug Race

Billy Haughton Seen Winning Driver Again In Thursday's Event

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP)—The idea is beginning to get around that 1955's top money-winning 2-year-old pacer and the year's No. 1 dash and money-winning driver will be an unbeatable combination next Thursday in the 11th annual Little Brown Jug.

The Delaware fairgrounds race for 3-year-old sidewheelers figures to be worth around $62,000, and Bachelor Hanover, with Billy Haughton doing the steering, is expected to grab the heavy end of it.

Bachelor Hanover, chestnut son of Nibble Hanover owned by Hazel I. Ruben of Charlton, N. Y., had 11 firsts and 9 seconds in 26 starts last year to lead the 2-year-old pacers in purses with $43,207.13.

Houghton, winner of the $66,000 "Jug" last year with Quick Chief, has been the leading dash winner the last three years and the leading money-winning driver the last four. In the last five years he has handled the reins for 644 dash winners, and has picked up a gaudy $1,922,093 in purses.

Bachelor Hanover put the clincher on his No. 1 rating Thursday night at Detroit as he won the Little Brown Jug Trial in straight heats in 2:02 1-5 and 2:02. The win, worth $10,050, boosted the Bachelor's 1956 winnings over the $70,000 mark. Seven "Jug" hopefuls were in the field.

Ten pacers were considered certain starters in the "Jug," third leg on the brand new "triple crown" circuit for the 3-year-olds. Four others were listed as probable starters, and a few other outsiders may be among those dropping the $500 starting fee into the box before 11 a.m. Tuesday—more than two days before the field gets the "Go!"

If 12 or fewer are nominated, all will go together. If 13 to 15 decide to start, the drivers will vote on whether to switch to the split heat plan. If 16 or more go, the field must be split.

Among the certain starters are Noble Adios, the second choice owned by Paul Wixom of Chicago; Adioscot, owned by W. T. Candler of Decatur, Ga.; Adios Senator, owned by R. C. Carpenter of Chester, N. Y.; Adioway, owned by S. A. Camp of Shafter, Calif.; Buckeye, owned by the Saunders Mills Stable of Toledo; Canny Scot, owned by Castleton Farm of Lexington, Ky.; Knights Patrol, owned by F. Perry of Suffolk, Va.; NewPort Frisco, owned by Newport Stock Farm of South Plainfield, N. J.; and Queen's Knight, owned by Parker Whiting of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Gray Brothers of East Providence, R. I.

Probable starters in the field of 52 still eligible include Coburn Frost of the Castleton Farm; McGuinea, owned by H. J. Fisher of Adrian, Mich.; Poplar Pence, owned by S. A. Huttenbauer of Cincinnati, and So Big, owned by F. F. Garrett of Wilmington, Ohio.

Back of Bachelor Hanover, the race loomed as a free-for-all between Noble Adios, Adioscot and Adioway. Last week at Reading, Pa., as Belle Acton won the Reading Futurity in three straight heats, the three challengers took turns finishing second. Belle Acton is not in the "Jug."

Adioscot is rated third choice despite the fact he won the Horsemen's Futurity at Indianapolis, the Review Futurity at Springfield, Ill., and the American National at Sportsman's Park, three of the four big stakes on the western Grand Circuit swing.

Noble Adios clung to the second favorite role on the basis of a 2:00 3-5 winning heat in the futurity at Indianapolis, but did not do too well at Reading. Adioway, the fourth choice, won the four-heat Matron Stake at DuQuoin, Ill., but is not rated too highly on a twice-around oval such as the "Jug" offers.

The dark horses include Buckeye, a problem pupil which finished as 1955's leading heat winner with 16 and second in the money-won list with $42,114.92; Canny Scot, rated tops on an off track, and Newport Frisco, an in-and-outer which could take it all or finish last.

Javits, including Thomas Curran, Chairman of the New York County Committee and Mrs. Preston Davie also of that county in which Javits lives.

Javits in the past has had Liberal Party support; this support now goes to Wagner. But the Liberal Party is to a very large extent Jewish in membership and Javits is a Jew while Wagner is a Roman Catholic. Whether these religious affiliations matter will get you an argument. The election of Javits would mean one Democratic vote less in the Senate.

I have made no references to the fight in Washington between Governor Arthur B. Langle and Senator Warren M. Magnuson because that situation has not yet taken on discussable form.

In Connecticut, Representative Thomas Dodd, a former FBI man and a very strong anti-Communist, is running against the Republican incumbent, Senator Prescott Bush, an ardent Eisenhower supporter. Connecticut is so influenced by its Governor Abe Ribicoff, that there is no telling how his popularity will affect the Senatorial election.

Football Value Told By Coach

Eliot Outlines Theory On Game Benefit, Price

Editor's Note: Ray Eliot, football coach at the University of Illinois, explains the positive value of American collegiate football in the first of a series of five articles written by famous sports figures for this newspaper.

By RAY ELIOT
Football Coach
University of Illinois

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — College football represents the ultimate in a purely masculine sport which requires topmost qualities of rugged individualism combined with a true spirit of cooperation and team play.

Because of these factors, college football has been and will continue to be popular with both those who compete and those who enjoy their football vicariously as spectators.

There is, of course, a price to pay for popularity. Anyone or anything which draws public attention also draws criticism. From some sources our game has been roundly belabored in recent months. Yet, for every bit of destructive criticism which has been levelled, any college coach can point with ease to a thousand cases in which football has helped to produce better men as students in our colleges and universities, better men to defend our nation's freedom, better men to form a strong bulwark of solid citizenship in our nation.

Amateurism is an ideal. College coaches stand out as individuals and as a group through the American Football Coaches Assn. in efforts to preserve amateurism and the amateur spirit in football. Yet, few ideals in our way of life are ever realized 100 per cent.

Each season coaches and players set for themselves certain goals. With every physical and mental ability at their dsiposal, these men strive to realize those goals. Whether they succeed entirely is not nearly so important as the fact that the end of the season they can look back and say, "I did my level best."

We can't ask for more than that from the thousands of clean cut American young men who are competing in college football. We shouldn't ask for more, because the end result of that process is what makes the game great and its products worthwhile.

Striving for goals, they be attainable or not, is what is important. This striving in football means self-discipline, training of the mind and body, development of indivdual character, and realzation that team spirit and team play are paramount, even to the point of subjugating one's personal desires.

College football produces these things and there is no finer method ni America today to produce good students, good fighting men, and worthy citizens to assume their roles in professions and businesses of our nation.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Tuesday Hopalong Cassady, All-America from Ohio State, tells of high pressure college football from the inside).

Birdie Clings To Big Hopes For Redlegs

BROOKLYN (AP)—Maybe Cincinnati's Redlegs can win the National League flag (the way Manager Birdie Tebbetts says they can) but they'll have their backs to the wall while doing it.

The Redlegs' 3-2 loss Sunday to the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers dropped them three full games behind. There's only a dozen more regular games for the Reds.

Th cautious pitching of veteran Sal Maglie held the Reds scoreless until the ninth inning Sunday and Tebbetts said after the game:

"I don't think they've got another pitcher who can hold us. In fact, I didn't think Maglie could hold us.

"But I never saw him better. His control, especially."

Asked if he thought the loss killed the Reds' pennant hopes, Tebbetts said:

"Of course not. You're never dead until you're out mathematically, and not until. Don't forget that."

The Reds had the tying run on second Sunday when Tebbetts picked Stan Palys to pinch-hit for reliefer Hershell Freeman.

But Palys grounded out to end the game.

The Redleg manager said that he "was thinking of using Art Schult, but it wouldn't be fair to the kid. He just got here."

Fort Wayne Open Goes To Art Wall

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — Art Wall Jr. of Pocono Manor, Pa., captured the Fort Wayne Open Golf Tournament, but it took an extra hole playoff to do it.

Dow Finsterwald of Athens, Ohio, defending champion, wound up with 280 and $50 in prize money.

Pat Lesser Tries To Perfect Game

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) —Since Pat Lesser won the Women's National Amateur Golf Championship a year ago, you might think she had a pretty good golf game. But tall, tanned Pat from Seattle wasn't satisfied.

As the field of 105 began play in the first round over the 6,340 yard, par 36-3874 Meridian Hills course, Miss Lesser wes rated as one of the favorites.

Maybe Brown Will Call On Graham Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It is getting about time for Otto Graham to come out of retirement again.

There has been no indications that Coach Paul Brown of the Cleveland Browns will ask his star quarterback of many years to change his mind about quitting football for good. But the way the National Football League champions have been going in exhibition games, Brown apparently is going to have to do something and quick. The championship season opens Sept. 30.

When the Browns dropped a 31-14 decision to the Detroit Lions Saturday night, it marked the fifth exhibition defeat without a victory for the champs. It also was the second loss to the Lions, who are 4-1.

Under George Ratterman's direction, the Browns took a 14-7 halftime lead but the Lions scored two touchdowns in the third period and added 10 more points in the final quarter. A 56-yard punt return touchdown by All - America Hopalong Cassady of Ohio State put the Lions ahead to stay.

Harvie Ward Cops U.S. Amateur Again

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP)—It was the general opinion all last week at the Knollwood club that Harvie Ward just couldn't miss. He didn't.

The only thing the 30-year-old San Francisco auto salesman lost was eight pounds in weight, dropping to 151, as he ground down his rivals and finally defeated veteran Chuck Kocsis 5 and 4 in Saturday's finale.

Ward became the first amateur in 21 years to take the national championship twice in a row. Lawson Little did it in 1934 and 1935.

Husky Mother Socks Chief Of School

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) —A Sessions Court hearing was scheduled here Tuesday for Mrs. Emma West, a husky mother charged with beating up the male principal of Harrison Elementary School Principal G. S. Mayberr, after treatment for a head wound requiring seven stitches, swore out a warrant charging Mrs. West with felonious assault. She is free under $1,000 bond.

Mayberry said the fracas started in his office when Mrs. West and her mother showed up in his office following a telephone conversation regarding her two children. The principal informed the mother the children were "disrupting" the third grade and suggested "it would be awful nice" if they attended school elsewhere.

After a verbal exchange in the office, Mayberry said, Mrs. West slapped him, broke his glasses and shoved him into a corner. when he tried to call police she broke the connection. Mrs. West's mother then entered the fight. The principal finally got both women by the hair and was taking them toward the door when he was struck on the head by something he said felt like brass knucks.

After the assault warrant was served Mrs. West and her mother, Mrs. Hattie Marshall, attempted to swear out an assault and battery warrant against Mayberry. They were told the judge would take up the matter at the hearing Tuesday.

'Democrat' Label To Stay On Ballot

COLUMBUS (AP) — Secretary of State Ted W. Brown has received a request to change the party designation of candidates on Ohio's Nov. 6 election ballot from "Democrat" to "Democratic."

The request came from Harry R. Meredith of Lima, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee.

Brown said it was too late to change wording of the official ballot since to do so might prevent members of the armed forces from voting in November.

Even Big Industrialists Join Do-It-Yourself Parade

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Now do - it - yourself is spreading through industry. By applying the erector set idea they used as youths, more industrialists are learning today how to make the big things they need out of ready-made little things they can buy off the shelf.

Whether it's putting up a new building or diversifying products on an assembly line, the old dependence on the custom designer or the one-of-a-kind fabricator increasingly is being sidestepped.

Metal exterior walls can be bought as off the shelf units from the factory, complete with window frames and window hardware, insulation and outside and inside finishing. They are bolted in place just as your boy does with his construction set.

Movable interior walls — prefinished steel, wood or glass partitions — are being used by many businessmen to provide quickly for expansion or reorganization of factory or office space.

Custom wiring for installing new equipment has been circumvented by plug-in arrangements for high voltage lines that feed machine tools and utilize new ducts permitting complete access to wires and cables inside.

Steel shelving now can be had on an expandable basis. Brackets, reinforcing bars, solid panels, back, bottom and top pieces, all come with perforations at standard intervals. Twist-on clips make it possible to alter arrangement of vertical or horizontal members in a jiffy by the erector set method.

Automation makes wide use of interchangeable small units. Many metal gadgets and structural parts along the 1956 engine line of an auto maker are not only interchangeable with the hardware to be used for 1957 models but also with those found along a competitor's engine line.

Automation plug-in components also come in handy when replacement, overhaul or failure calls for a quick change without stalling the entire mechanized production line. They also can be added for making off-beat or extra big end products, which formerly had to be done on a custom basis or on a sub assembly line.

Missing $600 Found Under Foot

BOSTON (AP)—Six hundred dollars reported lost by a California couple apparently did not stray very far.

Boston police got a call from Mr. and Mrs. Oliver G. Bowen of Pasadena, Calif. They were at Hartford, Conn., and said they lost the money while in Boston.

A few hours later, police reported, the Bowens called again, this time from Norwalk, Conn., to say the money was found in one of Mrs. Bowen's shoes.

'Doping Off' Trait Under Close Study

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Administration is trying to find out how long a person can go without "doping off."

"Doping off," explained Dr. Barry G. King, medical research executive of CAA in Washington, "is when you are not concentrating and not especially interested in your immediate surroundings."

Airplane pilots, like everybody else, are bound to "dope off" sometimes, Dr. King said, and at 7,500 feet this might be dangerous.

O'Neill Asks New Leg On Turnpike

CLEVELAND (AP)—A superhighway from Conneaut to the Ohio Turnpike should be started as fast as plans can be completed, C. William O'Neill believes.

The Republican candidate for governor and present attorney general made that point in speechse Sunday in suburban Bedford to a group of Hungarian businessmen and at a Constitution Day gathering at Louisville, Stark County.

O'Neill said traffic from the New York Thruway soon would be piling into northeastern Ohio and "we must be prepared to take care of that as well as serve our own transportation needs."
